England must have walnut wood of the finest to manufacture rife stocks. Having ransacked her own possessions, she has turned to America for the only timber suited to such manufacture. So the huge tree, a floral Methusalah, that stood on the tract bounded by the Turkaw, Ridge, and Loughborough roads, has been sold to a British agent for $120, lowered to earth, lopped of its branches, and freighted to Baltimore for transportation abroad.

The Tunlaw walnut was famed as the largest hardwood tree in this section of the country. It was 125 feet high, 21 feet in circumference, and had a bough spread of 150 feet. It went with eight of its lesser brothers for about $20, and the nine are expected to make gunstocks for arms gnough to supply 50,000 troops.

The Tunlay trace of 150 acres was bought by Adolphus H. Pickrell in 1948.

Adolphus Pickrell, and his son-in-law, Thomas Hune, ar., kept open house in a great mansion in the colonial style, reared near the guardian tree During President Grant's two administrations he was a frequent visitor at the hospitable homestead.
